REVAMPING OF CIA IS IN THE WORKS

Report Gen. C. P. Cabell May Succeed Dulles

NEW YORK (AP) — President Kennedy has stepped up plans to overhaul the Central Intelligence Agency in the wake of the unsuccessful invasion of Cuba by rebel forces, the New York Herald Tribune reported Friday night.

Quoting informed sources, the newspaper said in a Washington dispatch the overhaul was originally set for late this year or early next — when CIA head Allen W. Dulles was expected to resign.

When Kennedy reappointed Dulles CIA director, the Herald Tribune said, he did so with the understanding that Dulles would not remain in the post for four years but would stay just long enough to insure continuity of U.S. policy and to groom a successor.

Dulles is known to feel the failure of the Cuban invasion was purely a military failure, the Herald Tribune said, and that the CIA did its part of the job properly. The agency has been criticized for what its critics say was a wrong assessment of the Cuban situation.

The President last Saturday named Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor (ret.) to investigate U.S. intelligence capacities, including the CIA.

Should Dulles step down, the newspaper said, there was speculation Air Force Gen. C. P. Cabell, deputy CIA director, would serve as interim director.
